ne of the biggest frustrations for smartphone users is running out of battery too quickly. While there are countless apps available, some drain more power than others.